Mr Dbrio's Dairy cow

by Nokukhanya

Before Grandpa Oberio passed away, he gave his grandchild a dairy cow that would help him get money while he was still learning. One day he woke up as usual to feed his cow and milk it so that people who wanted milk would find it ready and fresh. He found his cow missing. It was painful for Mr little Oberio to find this, so he decided to go searching for his cow. He spent 3 days looking for his cow, but he never found it anywhere and then he decided to go back home without his cow. On his way back he saw something similar to his cow laying in Mr Ball's field. Mr Ball was the enemy to the Oberios and he never wanted to see them happy and becoming successful. That is why he thought of stealing Mr Oberio's cow, because he noticed that people were supporting him a lot. Mr little Oberio was shattered to find his dairy cow dead, he was hopelessly helpless in such that the police found that Mr Oberio's dairy cow had a calf nut they killed it and buried it too next to Mr Oberio's tomb. The End!

Looking for a flower

by Nondumiso

Once upon a time there was a butterfly which was lonely and that butterfly loved flowers very much. One day the butterfly decided to go and look for flowers. On the way she found a beautiful butterfly like her and she told her that.
She was looking for flowers and that friend helped her to find the flowers and she was happy to see beautiful flowers.
The two butterflies stayed happy together. The End.

A struggling fish

by Lwethu

Once upon a time there was fish which struggled for a living, because in the river, there was little water such that when the fish was in the water half of the body was not covered. After a few months there was rain and the water in the river increased, the river was full of water, the fish no longer struggled but it was swimming freely around, its body kept roaming around in the water extremely happy for having so much water in the river after such a long time of struggling. This is the end of the story.

A different tree in Dlokunga grown by Mr Handries

by Sakhizwe

Once upon a time there was a tree which was different. The tree was grown by Mr Handries 15 years before. The tree wasn't understandable, it was a little bit purple. Then, after 15 years, the tree began to have fruits and Mr Handries's children said the people mustn't eat the fruits, but they refused to listen and ate the fruits. After they ate the fruits, they began to develop some strange sickness that was not known and untreated. But they were back to eat the fruits and luckily they were treated by the fruit again and they felt better. This is the end of the story.

Killer bees

by Wonderboy

Once upon a time there were too many bees in Dlokunga. The bees were very dangerous in the winter because most Apiarists were keeping honey a lot to invest money. The people in the village started to complain to the bee-keepers (Apiarists) that the bees sting them and hurt the people in the community, which was totally wrong. The Apiarists decided to gather and hold together the meeting, because the bees in the village were extremely hurting people and could lead to death, since the bees were aggressive towards people. The Apiarists suggested keeping bees far away from people so that they couldn't continue to hurt people in the community.

Mr Fish

by Sibonginkosi

It was a bolt from the blue when suddenly Mr Fish came out of the water. He was so scared and never knew what was happening on earth. It was raining cats and dogs and it called for flooding. So Mr Fish was scared hence he never knew where his parents were.

The butterflies village

by Noncedo

One day there were a lot of butterflies in a village called newvillage. There, butterflies were beautiful and they had different beautiful colours. Then, one other day I was sitting outside, a cut butterfly came and sat on my lap and it was looking very stunning.

The hungry cows

by Nokwazi

Once upon a time there were three cows near Mkhonduo river. The farmer was not excited with his cows because his cows were extremely sick and were suffering from brucellosis. The farmer was worried sick about the cows so he then took the two cows into the kraal so that he could take the sick cows to the vet to do some checkups. They found out that they were suffering from hunger then they fed the cows and they started to feel normal, like the other two cows, they got a full stomach and suddenly the farmer saw a change in the cows as they were roaming around with the other two cows and the farmer was happy.
The end of the story.

The whale and Johna

by Owethu

Years back there was a big fish mainly known as a whale by the name of Lin. The whale lived in the water as usual. One day, as it was wandering around in search of food for it to eat, it came across a man who was named Johna. The whale kept him in its stomach for days trying to save him from drowning in the water. Lin took him across the lake from one side to another so naively, because it was doing something God instructed it to do.

The main lesson the whale gave here is that you can be of a lot and a lot of help to the world. If you see someone in trouble or who is experiencing some kind of problem, it would be so kind of you if you help someone, because there would be a reward at the end of it all. So, you should try to help in any way, so God can reward you in a pleasant way.

The best friends rabbit and the lion

by Martha

A long time ago there was a strange lion that lived in a jungle. It had no family but had a mouse friend. He was always proud of himself, thinking it was the most powerful creature or the strongest animal. It thought it would never need a mouse friend since it was a very small animal. But one day the lion was captured by some strangers in a net so that it could starve and die. But nothing as such happened ‘cause its little mouse friend came to it and saved it. It used its teeth and cutted the net and the lion came out. The lion was very excited with its friend. And they went out for a party and enjoyed as much as they could. The end.

The bees forest

by Andile

Once upon a time there was a very dangerous forest, known as Neal Forest where there lived a swarm of bees. These bees were very dangerous. One day a group of men came to cut down the biggest trees in the forest. While they were cutting the trees down a swarm came along and stinged every one of them, then one of the men went to call a beekeeper and that beekeeper took the bees.

The nature

by Nomcebo

Once upon a time there was a fish which had an attitude that was horrible. All the other fish hated that fish.
It was very lonely. Always alone and sad. The fish didn't share anything with anyone.
One day eagles came. As we know, fish and eagles are enemies. The fish had no friends and the others did not protect it from the eagles.
So, the eagle attacked the fish. There was a kind fish which helped that fish and it survived.
From that day, the fish apologized to the others. Then there was a happy ending.

Mr Cuddles

Mr Cuddles is so soft and fluffy. The teddy bear is unlike others, it is my best friend. He keeps me warm when it is cold, comforts me when I'm lonely or sad, keeps me safe from nightmares when I'm sleeping. With it, life is amazing. I will always keep it with me.

Bee and Butterfly

by Siphosethu

It was a red letter day for Queen Bee. She was wandering up the sky as she met up with a butterfly and they became big friends all of a sudden. They began chatting. Queen bee was telling a story about her keeper who would always keep them in a cage. She mentioned that her keeper was a nice guy and if she could transform into a human she would like to be like him. They continued flattering around until they felt hunger. Butterfly asked the bee what they may chop, chop to satisfy themselves, bee told the butterfly that they should go to Mr nice guy because he would provide syrup for them. They flew away straight to Mr nice guy.

The Beauty of Nature

by Siphamandla

Once upon a time in a village known as The Beauty of Nature, there lived a magical fish which lived in a stream full of flowers which were decorating it. Each time the fish would change at will made the stream water green and the mushrooms near would change to 3 different colours. Inside the water there were 6 red fish which were the babies of the old fish. One day some group of people came to visit the village and once they saw the beauty of the village one of them named it The Beauty of Nature.

A shining star

There was once a brave, gold heartened star full of love, which had no family but considered her neighbors to be family. She truly admired and looked up to them and would do everything they would ask and want from her. One day she was very disappointed and heartbroken when she overheard her neighbors speaking ill about her of how a nuisance she was to them and they were planning on getting rid of her. For a couple of days, she was isolated and very depressed and sad. The things they said about her kept on coming again and again to her mind to such an extent that she wasn't shining anymore and turned into a dark star. But one day, while strolling in the sky she went to the moon. She looked at its brightness and rose, then said to herself, "I want to shine more than that, I want to be the brightest star on the sky", indeed she did all possible to get to her goal and her neighbors upon seeing her they got themselves closer to her and full heartedly she accepted them. She was brave enough to overcome the sad awful things they said about her, and so it was a happy ending.